Nystedt murder trial underway

A preliminary hearing for the murder trial of Leonard Roy Phillips began in Lindsay court last week and will continue again on Monday.

Phillips, 33, from Fenelon Falls, is pleading not guilty to the charge of first degree murder in relation to the death of Mindén OPP Constable Eric Nystedt. The court has issued a ban on publication of details of this hearing.

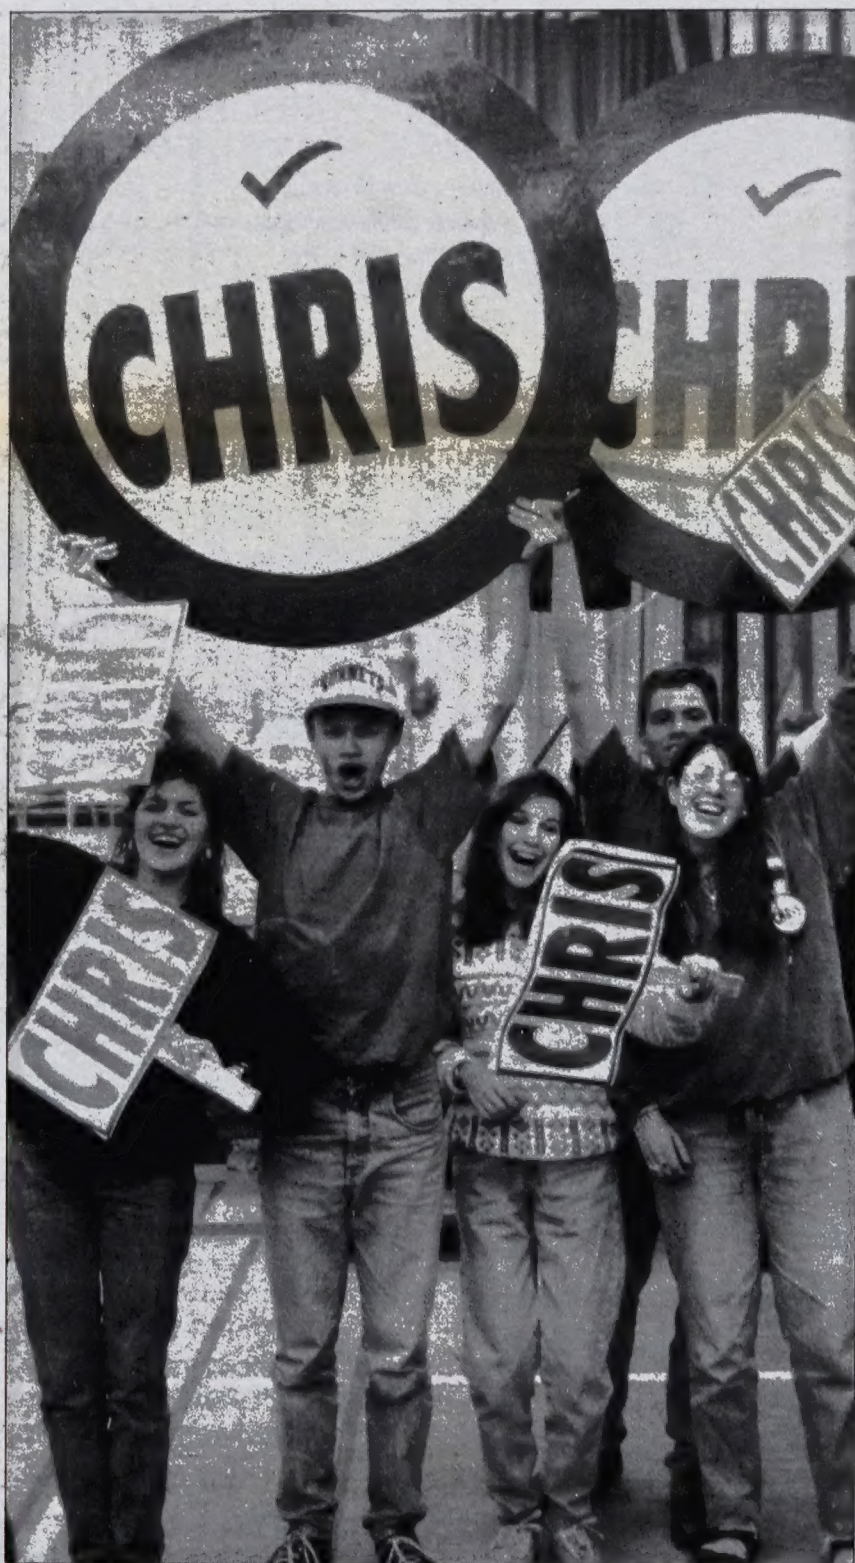

Nystedt was killed in a July 3 incident near Furnace Falls. The young officer was stabbed to death outside a cottage while pursuing a man believed to have been involved in a fight.

Phillips was apprehended July 4 at the close of an intense search in a heavily wooded area along Highway 503 near Furnace Falls.

Prime Time

Reformer Barry Devolin's second-place finish in the federal election hasn't bumped him from the limelight. Devolin is serving as a Reform spokesman on CBC's Prime Time News. He made his first appearance on the political panel this past Thursday.

CHEERLEADERS: Half the LCVI auditorium roared the name "Chris! Chris! Chris!" on cue from the cheerleading squad during Thursday's PC nomination. Chris Hodgson earned surprisingly strong support to become the riding's Conservative candidate in the pending provincial by-election.

LINDSAY — Victoria-Haliburton's Conservatives have rebounded from their black day in October and were back Thursday stronger than ever, pushing for a win in the coming provincial by-election.

More than 1,400 boisterous members crammed the LCVI auditorium to choose Chris Hodgson as the candidate to lead them into the pending by-election in this riding.

The nomination comes just four weeks after the federal wing of the party absorbed its most humbling defeat in the country's history. And while many read the Oct. 25 results as a death notice for the party, Thursday's impressive showing debunks this theory.

Membership in the provincial riding association climbed to an all-time high of 2,070 in time for Thursday's nomination meeting. Of these eligible voters, 1,413 turned out to the high school auditorium to choose between the two strong candidates. Ultimately, Hodgson won out over Valmay Barkey with a margin of 167 votes.

"This is the largest crowd we have had since 1985," Dianne Cunningham, MPP for London North told the overflow crowd in the high school auditorium. "The PC party has a bright and solid future in Victoria-Haliburton. She said the strong membership is a tribute to the nominees' high standing in the community.

Hodgson and Barkey each drew an impressive collection of supporters to Thursday's meeting.

Barkey, who narrowly lost out on the federal nomination was the heir apparent. And while the Oakwood resident's visible support was largely from the southern portion of the riding, she also gathered some backing from Haliburton County. In fact, her nomination was seconded by Lutterworth Township Councillor Bill Valentine.

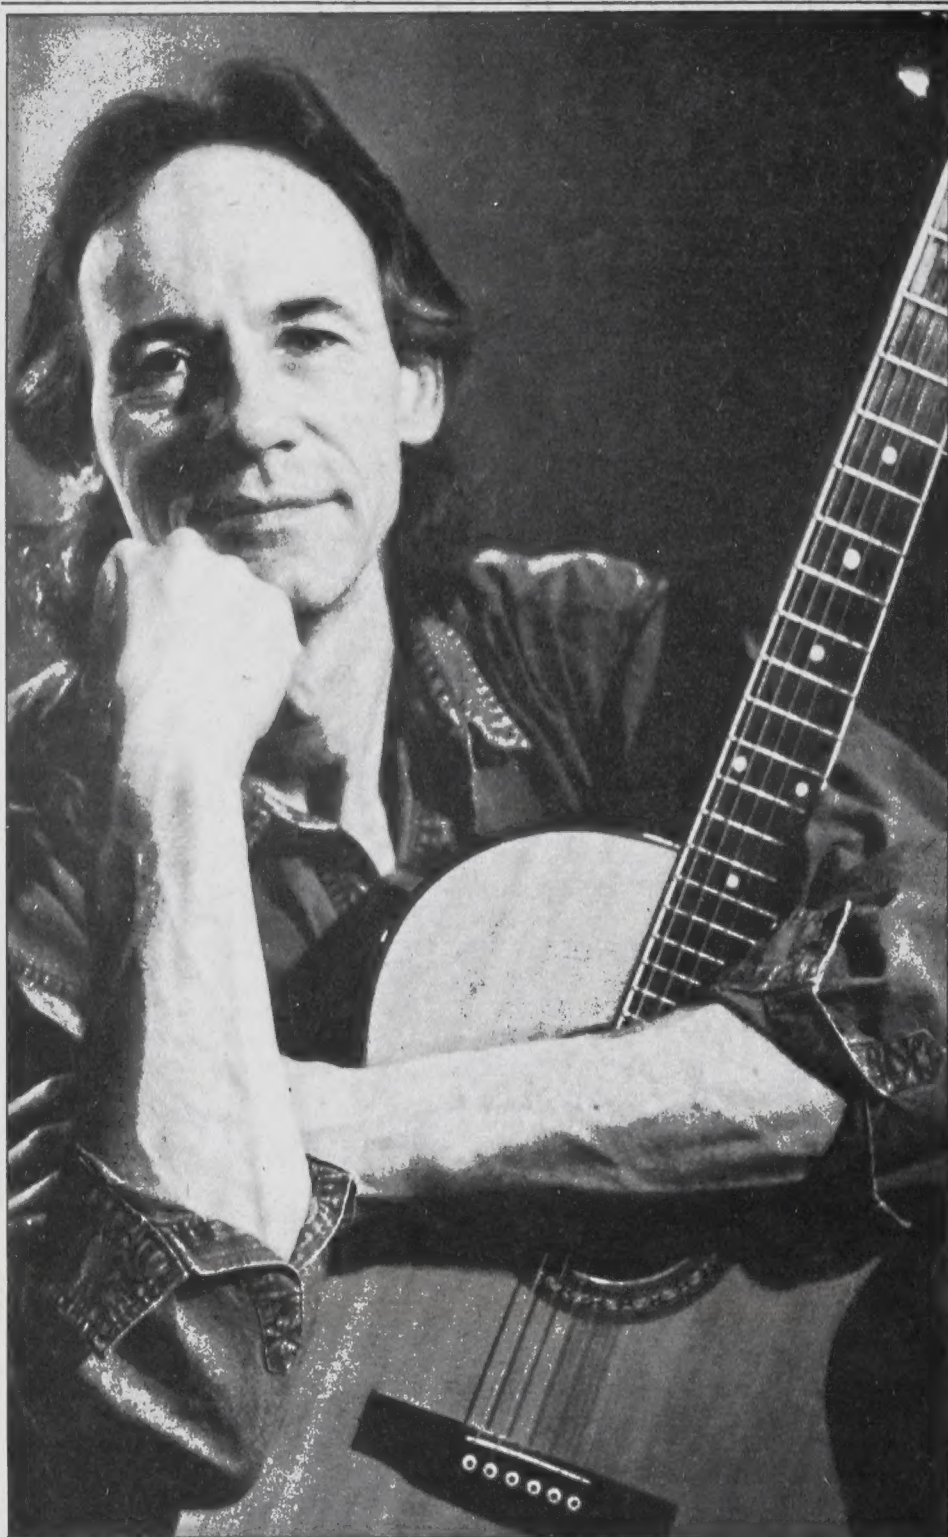

Hodgson, however, spoiled Barkey's chances by scouting out enough support from all over the riding. In particular, the Haliburton County Warden drew impressive support from the north. Three bus loads of members from Haliburton County most of whom added to Hodgson's victory, made the trek to Lindsay.

Ironically, it was the federal election that created the opportunity for the provincial by-election. The provincial seat became vacant when Independent MPP Dennis Drainville stepped down to make an unsuccessful run for the federal seat.

This provincial riding has been unrepresented since Drainville's resignation and the governing NDP seems reluctant to call the necessary by-election. Still, the Conservatives and Liberals are gearing up for the event.

While the Liberals have yet to set a date for their nomination, at least one candidate is actively seeking support. Victoria County Warden Sharon McRae's name is being bandied about as the likely candidate for the Liberals.

If McRae is successful, this will set the stage for a face-off between the county's two wardens.

A host of high-calibre local talent is in store for those who turn out to this Saturday's HAVE concert at the high school.

Highly-acclaimed singer, musician, composer, comedian, actor and dancer Brent Tucomb is the top attraction at this benefit concert.

Singer Doug Gifford will also be performing with water as the theme of his music -- which, of course, is the motive for the evening.

The concert is geared to raising money for HAVE (Help A Village Effort) which, in turn, will be used to develop water projects in India.

Other stars in the evening's line-up include Sue Valm and Two Loose, "a great singer with a great band."

Warden eyes vacant provincial seat

Chris Hodgson earns strong support in PC nomination

by Russ Duhaime

Chris Hodgson is hoping his career in municipal politics will come to a premature end.

Haliburton County's youngest Warden is now aiming to become Victoria-Haliburton's youngest Member of Provincial Parliament.

Hodgson, 32, won the opportunity to lead the Conservatives into a pending provincial by-election with a victory at last Wednesday's nomination meeting in Lindsay. The Dysart Township Reeve received a surprisingly comfortable margin of victory over challenger Valmay Barkey.

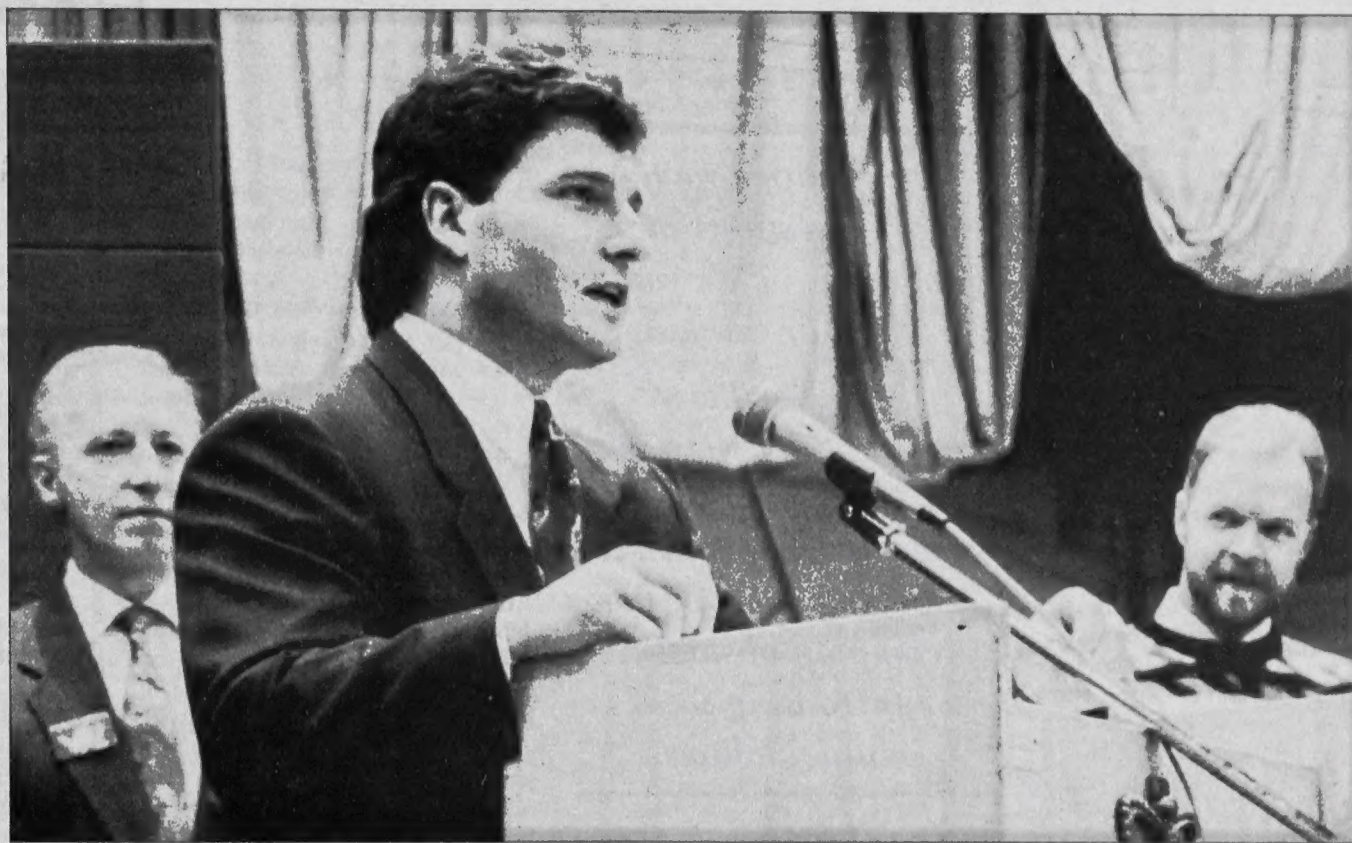

The ambitious Reeve of Dysart Township is now setting his sights on a by-election to fill the vacancy created by former MPP Dennis Drainville's resignation.

Hodgson says he has mixed feelings about the urgency of an immediate by-election in this riding. While he would like to have the luxury of time to organize a campaign, he also believes the riding needs representation.

Victoria-Haliburton has been without representation since Drainville stepped down in August to run as an independent in the federal election. The timing of a by-election, however, is in the hands of Premier Bob Rae, who has yet to provide any indication of when it might be called.

Hodgson's margin of victory came as a surprise to most in the crowded LCVI auditorium last Thursday evening. He and Barkey had each recruited 800 new members to the party, leading to speculation that the vote would be very close. With a tremendous showing of support from Haliburton County, however, Hodgson took the night with a solid 167-vote margin.

The nominees each had an opportunity to speak to the crowd of more than 1,400, but the speeches were largely a formality. By and large the voting members had made their choices before the night began.

The division of the vote was clear on the floor of the hall. The left bank of seats was filled with sign-carrying Barkey supporters while the right side overflowed with cheering Hodgson supporters. The atmosphere was that of a pep rally with both camps taking turns at leading the chants.

Traditionally, the focus of nomination meetings is on which nominee is most capable of winning an election. With two high-profile candidates in the running, however, the question was academic. The real question Thursday was which of the candidates best represents the vision of the majority.

Hodgson said the road to victory in the by-election must be paved with solid principles. "When Les Frost was Premier of the province, he referred to this party as the people's party. The people's party was based on principles."

ples."

Mike Harris and his team are trying to move the party back onto this solid ground, said Hodgson. "Solid ground which attracts support and, as a result, wins election."

Hodgson said the footing is based on the principles of equality, compassion and responsible financial management.

The government must be able to establish spending priorities and have the courage to say no. He said government, like most families, has to be able to live within a set budget.

"You have to be able to choose and do only what you can afford to do."

"You have the same choices in your homes. For example your children could benefit from a variety of things that are all worth while, such as hockey, piano lessons, swimming lessons, a new bicycle and $2,000 worth of dental work." With limited finances, he said, the priority would have to be the dental work.

"Government must do this also. You cannot say yes to every want or every well-intentioned program or you won't have the money to provide the essential services to help people in true need."

When governing parties fail to make the hard choices, Hodgson said they end up borrowing money. In effect, he said borrowing is a tax on future generations.

Hodgson said Mike Harris and the Conservative team are on the right track. He said this by-election will send a message from the people of Victoria-Haliburton that the real PC party of Ontario is back.

"Our priorities, our programs and our message will be based on common-sense principles which have served this province well in the past and will create real opportunities for working people and for all people to prosper in this province in the future."

Solid support demonstrated for Northern Network

by Jerry Grozelle

Members of the Northern Community Network may have been apprehensive about the public's response to the "town hall" meeting at the Kinmount Community Centre Wednesday evening. The Network members were looking for public input, but they were also wondering whether the people supported the concept of the network.

When the meeting was over they had received a resounding thumbs up on both counts. Sixty-four concerned residents of the area turned out to express their concerns and offer their support and expertise.

Somerville Reeve John Huke gave a brief summary of the objectives of the Network, its terms of reference and how it was set up. He explained that the NCN is made up of two groups, the Executive Group and the Resource Group and outlined the responsibilities of both.

Huke pointed out that the network is not another form or level of government. He also stated that it was not the intention of the network to overstep the bounds of any government authority.

Among the members who were able to attend Wednesday's meeting were Somerville, Laxton-Digby-Longford, Snowdon and Bexley Reeves John Huke, Doug Horton, George Simmons and Dean Spry (respectively), Galway-Cavendish Councillor Peter Franzen and area Board of Education representative Dianne Austin. Three other members, Reeve Bern Berry of Anson, Hindon and Minden, Reeve Harold Bruce of Dalton and Reeve Bev MacDuff of Glamorgan were unable to attend.

After introducing the directors, Huke called upon Laxton, Digby and Longford Reeve Doug Horton to briefly outline the issues that have been discussed at the past five network meetings.

"You'll notice we have more questions than answers," Horton "You'll notice we have more questions than answers... We want to stir your thinking."

The Northern Community Network is taking a co-operative approach to clearing some of the common obstacles confronting local municipalities.

said. "We want to stir your thinking."

Following Horton's outline, the audience was divided into discussion groups of eight to 10 people. A director was assigned to each group to take notes and report on the concerns and priorities expressed by each group.

Although each group had its own discussion, there was a number of recurring themes.

The importance of having a medical centre in Kinmount was high on everyone's list of priorities. The old CIBC building has been recommended as an ideal site for a medical facility because of its central location.

At least one service group has expressed its willingness to contribute financially to the purchase of the property for that purpose.

Another suggestion was to sell shares to the public to raise money to purchase the property and set up a medical centre.

Some form of banking facility in Kinmount was high on the everyone's list and the possibility of establishing a credit union was discussed.

Keeping the hospital in Minden, adequate fire services throughout the region and the high cost of education ranked near the top of the list of concerns as well.

Some people would like to see Kinmount under the authority of one municipal government, rather than have it divided into segments as it is now.

Under the topic of tourism, it was suggested that the saw mill, train station and Kinmount Park be developed as tourist attractions.

The need to strengthen the Kinmount Civic Action Group was also suggested.

Promoting Kinmount as a tourist attraction, making better use of the Kinmount Fairgrounds with special events and activities on a year-round basis, exploring avenues of creating employment in the area, working with all levels of government to improve the water quality in the Irondale and Burnt rivers, eliminating late school busing by asking parents to take responsibility for picking up their children from school when they are involved in late activities, more involvement and input into community decisions by area youth/teens, better co-ordination of events in the area to avoid competition for attendance, new spirit for volunteers and recognition for their efforts, resolution of municipal/county waste management concerns and continued opposition to market value assessment were some of the many topics discussed.

It was decided that there is a need to continue with the Northern Community Network and to communicate the network's progress. The Somerville Township office will continue to serve as the communication liaison with the network.

Two more town hall meetings will be held in the region early in 1994. The times and places have yet to be set.

BIA plans brain-storming session

Minden's Business Improvement Area has asked Brian Brown, the director of the Community Futures Program for Haliburton County, to serve as a resource person to the organization.

The request was made during the BIA's regular meeting last Monday. Brown was in attendance to explain his role in the county and how he might be of assistance to the organization. He mentioned he had been asked to serve as and advisor to the Haliburton BIA, and he was willing to do the same in Minden. The business group jumped at the opportunity and extended the invitation.

Brown told the group of some of his activities in other communities, including Wawa and Orangeville. Through a series of meetings in these locations he was able to distill a focus and direction for the communities. Once the direction was established, with the input from a cross-section of the community, including political leaders, service clubs, informal organizations and citizens, a list of priorities was created with a detailed plan on how and when these might be achieved.

With the goals clearly stated, and wide general acceptance for them in the community, the plan moved to the implementation stage. Timetables were established for each goal and progress was monitored on a regular basis, with the media playing an important role in keeping the community informed of the successes, as well as those which still had a way to go.

The community development director has held a number of meetings in the county since beginning his job in September and is continuing to meet with municipal councils.

Among the first-year priorities to emerge from those meetings are: the expansion of the programs offered through the Haliburton campus of Sir Sanford Fleming College; assisting in the development of a trails network strategy; assisting in the development of a county strategic plan; examining the potential of the area's forests for future development; and identifying training requirements in the county.

"Economic development is all about change and people working together. If individuals in a community work against each other, little will be accomplished," Brown told the gathering.

After being asked to serve as a resource person for the BIA, he suggested a "brain-storming" session be held among business owners and managers in the area.

All merchants are invited to the session scheduled for 8 a.m. at Mr. D's Donut shop this Wednesday November 24. All Minden and area merchants are invited to attend.

Councillor seeks input on Minden's public water tap

What should happen with the public water tap in Minden?

This is the question to which Minden Councillor Gerry Rome would like an answer.

Rome posed the question at last Monday's meeting of the Minden BIA. He noted that the Public Utilities Committee has determined that the cost of the water taken from the tap should be borne by someone, since the community is served by a user-pay water system.

A number of options come to mind:

-the cost of the public water tap be taken from the general revenue; that in fact all taxpayers subsidize its operation;

-the cost be assessed to those who are currently connected to the water system, basically the taxpayer.

Johnny O': Our man in Ottawa

*Can the Liberals help turn the country around?
John O'Reilly thinks so.*

by Andy Holloway

John O'Reilly quietly watches as the sun shines over the huge bank of dark clouds covering most of central Ontario, the heartland of Canada.

At his own expense, Victoria-Haliburton's new Liberal MP is flying to Ottawa with his daughter aboard a Cessna 310 L chartered out of Lindsay.

As part of the Liberals' near sweep of this province, O'Reilly and his cohorts are expected to get Ontario's economic engine firing on all cylinders and bring a ray of hope into the lives of the one million unemployed. The Liberal election strategy was to offer hope to the people and the people want to believe they were telling the truth.

But the task of actually bringing unemployment down and prosperity up is daunting. Haliburton County Warden Chris Hodgson says the new government faces some formidable challenges, as does O'Reilly. If the Liberals fail, O'Reilly knows his party will be booted from office in the same fashion as the Progressive Conservatives were a month ago. This has apparently struck a chord with the 95 Liberals elected from Ontario, who O'Reilly says are prepared to force this government to keep its word.

The reason for this trip is a meeting with the Minister of Agriculture along with the rest of the Ontario Agriculture Caucus to present their views on the latest round of General Agreement of Tariffs and Trade (GATT) talks which are winding up.

"I just hope I can fulfil the expectations people have of me. But I'm going to work hard as heck."

"Ontario caucus members are very determined that this government keep its election promises. What the minister will be able to do, I don't know. But he now knows the resolve of Ontario MPs and unless we like the agreement he brings back we will not vote for it. Those are strong words, I know, but we have to protect our farming families in this province.

"I think it's important that we keep the promises to the people who elected us and one of those promises was to get a better deal on GATT."

The government is still young and although it is already finalizing and formulating plans, the government will not sit in the house until mid-January. During that time MPs, like O'Reilly, will spend a lot of time going back and forth between Ottawa and their home riding.

CAPITAL VISIT: Victoria-Haliburton MP John O'Reilly points out the sights of Ottawa to his daughter Janet during a recent trip to the capital.

O'Reilly's own schedule has him involved in many local events, like the Haliburton and Minden Santa Claus Parades. Sandwiching his flight to Ottawa, O'Reilly spent Monday morning at the Fleetwood Canada plant in Lindsay and will be on hand at a Victoria County Association of Community Living function on Tuesday. He refuses to pass over commitments he has already made, hence the day trip flight.

This kind of community profile was what made former MP Bill Scott so popular with his constituents.

"Our family always considered the highest honour was to be an MP, even higher than a hockey superstar"

O'Reilly seems to be more willing to get involved in the political arena than Scott, but he says he will remain more of a constituency man than an Ottawa man. His Lindsay office will open some time in early December, but already his temporary fax line is humming and there are 10 messages a day left on the answering machine.

People are expecting big things from the Liberals, and so is John O'Reilly.

You could say the framework for O'Reilly's rise to the top was already etched in his heritage. His grandfather was a prominent politician in Victoria County having served as the county warden and the mayor of Lindsay.

"My family always spoke of how honourable it was that my grandfather was involved in politics. They always said it was an honour, not a privilege, to serve the people so I supposed I looked at his career and realized it was an important function. Our family always considered the highest honour was to be an MP, even higher than a hockey superstar," says O'Reilly laughing. "And I know they are all very proud."

His daughter Janet, who has come along for the ride, says she, too, is proud. "I could never be ashamed of him, he's come too far." Janet, a grade 12 student at Lindsay Collegiate, is one of two children O'Reilly has had with his wife of 28 years, Marilyn. Their son, Norman, is in his first year at the University of Waterloo.

Despite his grandfather's political career, it took a while before O'Reilly entered politics himself. He says when he was in high school he never had an inkling that he would end up in politics, preferring instead to play hockey and chase girls. But O'Reilly left school early to enter the printing trade and support his family and soon took another job fixing up houses. Later, he jumped into the real estate business full-time, where he has been employed for the past 23 years. It was during his time in the printing business, working for various newspapers, that O'Reilly became involved in politics. Disgusted at a virtual acclamation of Glen Hodgson at a Tory nomination meeting, O'Reilly was wooed by Liberal Dave Walling to work on his campaign.

Walling lost, but O'Reilly was recruited to work for many other Liberals, including Bruce Glass and John Eakins.

"I've worked on campaigns in the '60s and '70s both federally and provincially. Once you have worked on a campaign you are always asked to work on another. When I ran for town council I knew I was hooked."

Winning the MP's job will undoubtedly change the lives of the O'Reillys. In many ways it already has. O'Reilly has had to give up curling, a sport he has been involved with since 1966. In fact, he has only missed curling one other year when he suffered a knee injury. He has had to stop attending service club meetings and has discovered that being an MP is like being public property.

"You have to give up the private part of your life. For example, having dinner with your family at a restaurant is out unless you are prepared not to eat. My wife won't even go out with me now because of all the interruptions."

Besides the personal appearances there is also the time spent preparing for meetings, issues to get caught up on and phone calls to answer.

"I spend a lot of time just reading material. You can't go into a meeting and just wing it. If you want to contribute you have to read up on the issues and prepare for the meetings."

Being left out of cabinet and the junior ministerial positions did not disappoint O'Reilly because he is a rookie on the Hill. He points out there is a lot of good, experienced individuals on the sidelines who did not get a call and "they are more disappointed than I am."

O'Reilly does want to be involved, however, and says he wants to join the Agriculture Caucus because farming is a big part of Victoria County's economy. His wife's family were also dairy farmers so there is an inherent interest in protecting farmer's rights. The Justice Committee is another committee he wants to join because he thinks it would be valuable to add something other than a lawyer's view on crime and social justice.

Parliament Hill is a mess.

Many of the incumbent Tories never returned to clean out their offices and furniture; papers and books sit in the hallways awaiting removal or reassignment. When O'Reilly arrived in Ottawa last Monday the Liberals had not yet assigned offices to all their MPs. For the first three weeks in Ottawa, O'Reilly shared an office with three others, but he didn't seem to mind. And while he had a preference as to where his new office would be, he didn't really care. The 53-year-old O'Reilly positively bounces with youthful enthusiasm around the Hill while showing daughter Janet the sights.

"I don't care where they put me. A table in the hall would be fine. Just being here is enough for me."

Later that day O'Reilly is granted his wish, an office in Confederation Hall on the fourth floor. Rooms 417, 419 and 421 have been assigned to O'Reilly and his two-person staff. Daughter Janet is impressed with the new digs, "It's awesome," she says.

O'Reilly feels the same way about serving in Ottawa.

"It's a big thing for someone who is a Liberal from Victoria-Haliburton to be in this position. There hasn't been a Liberal MP since 1945, that's 48 years. I just hope I can fulfil the expectations people have of me. But I'm going to work hard as heck."

ers in the village of Minden;
-the cost be covered by some organization, such as the BIA or assigned to commercial taxes in the municipality;

-the cost be recovered through the installation of a coin-operated user-pay system,

-or, the cost be eliminated altogether by the removal of the service.

At the moment, the one wrinkle in all these options, is that the actual cost which could be assigned to the public water tap is unknown. Rome is waiting for final figures from this year before determining how best to liquidate the cost of the public water tap.

Anyone with an opinion on this question is asked to contact Councillor Rome at 286-2814. He notes that calls may be received by an answering machine, but he hopes people will leave a message on the tape.

Editorial Waiting game

Victoria and Haliburton Counties have been coasting along for too long now without representation at Queen's Park. Premier Bob Rae's waiting game is now going into overtime while those issues that need immediate attention are being overlooked by government.

The tremendous participation in last Thursday's provincial Conservative nomination demonstrates the keen interest in filling the vacancy at Queen's Park. More than 1,400 people turned out to the meeting where Chris Hodgson was chosen to lead his party into a by-election.

The Liberals, too, are warming up for the necessary by-election. While the party has yet to set a date for its nomination, an unofficial campaign is underway with several individuals actively seeking support.

The NDP, it seems, is the only major party that has yet to show an interest in filling the vacancy created by Dennis Drainville's resignation. Unfortunately, it's New Democrats who will ultimately set the date of a by-election.

If Bob Rae's strategy is to give Victoria-Haliburton's New Democrats a chance to organize a winning campaign, we will have a very long wait, indeed. The Premier must surely realize that the NDP will not be a factor in a by-election here.

The residents of this riding deserve immediate and equal representation in Provincial Parliament. Let's end this pointless waiting game and get on with the job of filling Victoria-Haliburton's seat at Queen's Park.

Co-operation

The co-operative style of problem solving being practised by the Northern Communities Network is a positive and refreshing approach to achieving the common goals of municipalities in Haliburton and northern Victoria County.

This unique group is attempting to erase the municipal and county boundaries in an effort to improve the economies and lifestyles of the people it serves. Although its directors are municipal politicians, the network is now striving to obtain public input and advice in establishing priorities for a united effort.

We need only look back to last year's fire protection debacle to see how improved co-operation might clear up some of the common obstacles faced by our tiny municipalities. Snowdon and Lutterworth Townships were left dangling when Somerville Township decided it no longer wanted to service these areas. Through negotiations, an arrangement has been worked out. There is, however, plenty of room for improvement that can be achieved if all the players are willing to sit down and hammer out a mutually-beneficial agreement.

The network held its first "town hall" meeting last week, where several key issues were identified as priorities. Based on the success of this meeting, the network is planning two more in the new year. Let's hope the spirit of co-operation experienced last week sets the foundation for unselfish progress in the days ahead.

All just fools up on a hill

Television is always larger than life.

Even reality-based programs seem to have little to do with reality.

The Parliamentary channel is one such program which turns the House of Commons into a house of illusion.

If you can stay awake while watching this cable service it appears the two opposing sides of the house are about a football field away from each other. The fact the unruly members are continually shouting at each other does little to take away from this illusion.

"MISTER SPEAKER, IF I MAY YELL AT THE TOP OF MY LUNGS AT THE HONOURABLE, BUT MISGUIDED MEMBER I WILL IMPRESS MY FAMILY BACK HOME WHICH IS WATCHING THIS ON TV."

The speaker, of course approves, but if things get out of hand he will say, "ORDER, ORDER" and bang something, usually his head, on the arm of his chair to attract attention.

In reality, the two opposing sides are about 15 feet away from each other. Close enough that when exchanging words the leaders can probably feel as well as hear each other's words.

This could be a reason why the members always seem to be yelling...to give the honourable members opposite even more reason to cringe from their words.

Another reason for the yelling could be the uncomfortable seats. On TV the seats look very comfortable. So comfortable that many members like to catch an early afternoon siesta while sitting in them.

Up close, however, those plush green seats are not that cozy. For instance, you can not rock back and forth on them. You must sit up straight or slouch against your desk. Politicians earned their stoop and sloping shouldered look the hard way - they earned it. Sitting in these chairs for any length of time would drive you batty, but pleas for comfort are seldom accepted by the Canadian public.

Now that there are two new

Some did not remember

Editor:

November the 11th, at 11 a.m., Remembrance Day in Kinmount, 1993, a day to remember.

I think my fellow comrades have forgotten what Remembrance Day means. I was very discouraged with attendance by the community of Kinmount and Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 441 members at the Remembrance Day services in Kinmount. Only a handful, besides children and their parents, attended on November 7 and four on November 11. We should show respect for those who died for us and our country.

Gooderham had a good crowd of children laying wreaths, and people came from all over to pay respect. Burnt River had a church service and laying of wreaths.

I would like to thank those who came. Your support of the Poppy Fund was appreciated. The fund did well, thank you from the Poppy chairman.

Never forget Mulroney and the harm he caused

Editor:

I do not agree with Tory Senate leader Lowell Murray's hiring of additional staff to raise their entitlement so they can exhaust their budgets. Please put a stop to this move before it gets out of hand.

Please hold them to 1992 standards as I feel this is a very cheap move.

I have not forgotten the move Brian Mulroney made to get them in there in the first place.

Francis W. Leveck,

Politics, religion and a good Japanese joke

The 1993 Canadian federal election results are already growing mould on the sanitary landfill site called history . . . and already I'm filled with regret.

Not because the new gang of SOBs are turning out to be no better than the old gang. I wasn't expecting miracles.

What's made me sad is the realization that I will probably never again hear from the Natural Law Party. They were big in the past federal election. They fielded 230 candidates from Bella Coola to Bonavista.

The party spent untold hundreds of thousands of dollars on newspaper, magazine, radio and television ads. They vowed that, once elected, they would end war, pestilence, disease, poverty, crime, the deficit and waxy yellow build-up overnight.

They didn't, alas, elect a single candidate.

Canadian voters detected something a little fuzzy in the Natural Law Party election platform. Perhaps it was the utter lack of detail from the candidates, who dismissed all skepticism with the explanation that Natural Law had been scientifically proven. Maybe it was the stated plan to replace our armed forces aircraft with 7,000 meditating disciples levitating cross-legged in harmonious formation.

Canadian voters may be naive. (We did hoist Mulroney into the saddle two terms in a row) -- but we're not bone stupid. The Natural Law Party never (ahem) got off the ground.

And that's a pity. We need all the comic relief

we can get. We always have. Each decade has given humankind at least one predominating fad or folly to take our minds off our troubles. Back in the Roaring Twenties we had dance marathons and flagpole sittings. In the Dirty Thirties somebody invented miniature golf and bathtub gin to help us forget that the country was broke and so were we. For the more adventurous there was goldfish swallowing, wherein the hero (often after having been overexposed to the aforementioned beverage) took it upon him ore herself to lower live and wriggling goldfish into their throats and down their gullets.

In the 1940's some fiend invented the rotary powered lawn mower while some other fiend came up with Weed and Feed, the first combination fertilizer/herbicide that made lawns grow like Sumatran Jungles. The cult of the lawn was born and North American weekends were ruined forever.

What did the 50's bring us by way of diversion? In the immortal word of the businessman to Dustin Hoffman in The Graduate . . .

Plastic.

Specifically, the credit card. For the first time in history you didn't have to have wampum, beaver pelts, gold dust or cash on the barrel. All you had to have was a wafer of plastic and sufficient linguistic dexterity to pronounce the words "charge it." The rest was magic.

At least until the end of the month.

In the 70's it was horoscopes. It became difficult to meet someone and not be greeted with "Hi, what's your sign?"

It was annoying, but it propelled us into the 80's. Which were really a pain in the astrology department -- or rather its related offshoots of crystal therapy, harmonic convergence and the chance to be "channelled" by the ghost of some 8,000-year-old Mayan priest who knew no better way to spend eternity than to help you and Shirley MacLaine get to know your "real" selves.

Which got us to the 90's, a decade which showed real promise, what with the Natural Law Party looking to take over 24 Sussex.

Alas, no such luck. the party appears to have vanished more thoroughly than one of magician Doug Henning's main stage elephants.

So what now? Well, I hate to raise false hopes, but there's a rising young religion in Japan right now called Taisokyo. It only has one tenet. Its disciples must laugh. At everything.

House burn down? Snort. Your loved one kicks the bucket? Chortle. Famine? Flood? Nuclear War? Stop it, you're killing me.

"Laughter is the way to God," says a Taisokyan spokesman. "There is no reason for sorrow. Only selfish people think about their own loss."

Do I see a place for Taisokyo in the Canadian Parliament? Don't see why not. It's got all the attractiveness of the Natural Law Party -- plus a sense of humour.

At the very least, it'll be good for a laugh.

Why fix up the home if taxes will go up?

Editor:

I was reading the letter to the editor dated November 15 by H.D. Campbell congratulating Anson, Hindon and Minden township (council) on some improvements in Minden. I think it's sure a lot nicer too. But if it's like the township I live in, everyone's taxes will go up. If you cut the grass or do some painting as he suggests, in Lutterworth your taxes go up.

parties in the House and many new members the calls for better seats will no doubt increase.

It isn't hard to picture Bloc Quebecois leader Bouchard saying, "MISTER SPEAKER, I MUST PROTEST AGAINST DEE UNITED STATES TARIFF INCREASE AND DESE SEATS. I WOULD LIKE DEE PRIME MINISTER TO BUY AIR RINGS TO RELIEVE DEE PRESURE ON MY BUDDOCKS."

Behind the curtains that frame the house while in session, is a lounge. This is where most members sit and relax while others are out there on TV yelling.

These words of advice are offered to John O'Reilly: When you make your first speech make sure you get some of your friends to sit around you so that those watching will think you are well supported. A person surrounded by empty seats does not command much respect, even if he is yelling at the top of his lungs.

One of the side effects of the Tory embarrassment is that all those civil servant assistants who write down what their masters should yell on TV are now out of work and scrambling for positions.

O'Reilly told me the pile of resumes sitting on his desk is huge and he already has an assistant, Alf Blanchard, a young veteran of the Hill who tells me he loves Ottawa. But there are plenty of other young, freshly scrubbed faces trying to gain entrance to the Hill. And some not so fresh faces.

Indeed, while taxiing to the airport the cab driver politely inquires if he can be O'Reilly's personal driver.

Uh, no.

But that's Ottawa, everybody is on the make.

Things always look better on TV.

Brothers lead Redmen to wins

by Andy Holloway

The Haliburton Highlands Redmen outclassed their opposition in the two games they played last week and outscored them 27-3.

On Thursday, the Redmen went to Norwood and beat the Knights 16-2. The previous night they had played the Lindsay Collegiate Spartans and won another laugher 11-1.

"They are two of the weaker teams in the league, but nonetheless we played quite well," said coach Ron Yake.

With the two wins the Redmen remain undefeated on the season with a 4-0 record.

Kevin Morissette led the Redmen with five goals against the Rams and added two assists as well. Three of Kevin's goals were scored in the second period to give him a natural hat trick. Meanwhile, his brother Mark and Jackie Morrison each had five assists and one goal.

All but one Redmen hit the scoreboard. Mike MacKenzie and Tim Keefer each had a pair of goals, while Mark Stamp, Jonathon Bishop, Andrew McKelvey, Dennis Woods and Mike Billings also scored.

Bishop also recorded three assists as did Woods and Andy Billings, while Bill Bradley and Jeff Black each had a pair of assists.

Brotherly combinations propelled the Redmen to their third win of the year with the Morissettes combining for nine points and the Stamps combining for seven points in an 11-1 win over the LCVI Spartans.

HHSS Redmen forward Andrew McKelvey bangs away at LCVI Spartans netminder Aaron Graham in an effort to score during second period action.

The Redmen scored their first goal with less than two minutes gone in the game and scored their 11th with one minute left. In between, they scored nine more times while the Spartans, who did not get a shot on goal in the first period, were left in the wake.

Even the Spartans' lone goal was a fluke. With the Spartans down 8-0 in the third period, Mike Reid blasted an 85-foot slapshot that somehow eluded Justin Rowden, who had taken over from Peter Brohman in the second period. To be fair, the blast did seem to have been deflected by a Redmen defender at

Snowmobile clubs are gearing up for winter season

by Andy Holloway

Judging by the increase in activities by area snowmobile clubs, winter is just around the corner.

Being the largest snowmobile group in Ontario, the Haliburton County Snowmobile Association is right in the thick of things.

The HCSA reached an agreement with the Haliburton Nordic Trail Association over the location of trails in Glebe Park. The Nordic group wants to host two sanctioned cross-country ski events, but to do so it must not have its trails crossing snowmobile trails. At Glebe Park the trails intersect twice.

Dysart councillor and HCSA president Brain Watts informed council that the association has agreed to move its trails providing the Nordic association does the legwork.

Council also dealt with two other snowmobile matters at its meeting last Monday. It gave permission for the Paudash Trail Blazers to extend their snowmobile trail along the Dudley-Monmouth boundary line. The Paudash group indicated it will seek permission from all private property owners.

Watts said the HCSA had no objections to the proposal. "We don't have a problem with them or anything like that as long as they're not trying to take over one of our trails," said Watts.

The request was granted as long as the Paudash group does not disturb the boundary stakes and is properly insured.

Council also granted a request by the Tall Pines Snowmobile Club to use the Havelock-Livinstone boundary line as a trail. The trail will skirt the east side of Kawagama Lake to avoid going through cottagers' properties. The Tall Pines club received a $56,000 grant from the province to construct 15 kilometers of trails and upgrade another 10 kilometers. There are 20 people working on the project which will improve the trail network from Dorset to Dwight and Ontonagon Lake.

The Algonquin Snowmobile Club also received a SNO-TRAC grant. It will spend $55,000 to upgrade 22 kilometers of trails including trails in Franklin and McClintock townships. The club will also build a 50-foot bridge and buy a trail groomer.

Novice A Monarchs struggle during learning process

The hockey spirit is in the air again as the Ontario Hydro Novice A Monarchs started their season with two wins sandwiched between a few losses.

The skill level is improving, however, as those players who played Novice B or C last year adjust to their new division.

On October 24, a great team effort resulted in a 3-2 win over Beaverton.

Goalie Mark Snell was outstanding in keeping Beaverton to just two goals. Andy Kinsman scored two goals, one assisted by Jamie Colliss and the other by Jordan Campbell and Ben Carpenter. Campbell also scored a goal with the assists going to Kinsman and Carpenter.

On November 7, the Monarchs beat Mariposa 4-1 in a game at Little Britain. Snell missed recording a shut-out by just seven seconds.

Kinsman scored before the game was two minutes old with an assists from Carpenter. Carpenter then scored to give the Monarchs a 2-0 lead. Kinsman and Greg Vanderlip picked up the assists. Campbell scored again in the second with assists recorded by Kinsman and Carpenter. In the third, Nicholas Mitchell scored the final Monarchs' goal with assists from Colliss and Matt Mattsson.

Mariposa had beaten the Monarchs 4-2 on October 23. Mariposa scored two in the first before Kinsman cut the lead in half on a goal assisted by Lance Aggett and Mitchell. Carpenter scored the only other Minden goal, with assists

GAME OF THE WEEK

Atom A:Minden vs. Woodville

The Atom A Minden Monarchs were evenly matched up against Woodville last Tuesday night and it took a late goal by Minden's Ashley Pettes to break a 2-2 deadlock. Pettes' goal with about four minutes left in the game was the first goal scored by either team since the first period. Woodville mounted a furious comeback, but was denied the tying goal by Minden goalie Mitch Johnson who after the first period was rock solid.

the blue line and the puck knuckled by Rowden high on the glove side.

Besides that the Redmen played a near-perfect game. In fact the score could have been much worse. Kevin Morissette had five or six great opportunities to score, but was stone-walled by Spartans' goalie Aaron Graham. Graham was outstanding despite allowing 11 goals.

Greg Stamp scored three times to lead all Redmen goal scorers while his brother Mark added a pair of goals and a pair of assists. Of the first eight Redmen goals, the Stamps were involved in all but two.

Kevin Morissette did manage to put one by Graham, but added four assists while his brother Mark scored one goal and added three assists.

Other multiple point games were recorded by Bill Bradley with a goal and two assists, Jeff Black with three assists, Mike MacKenzie had a goal and an assist and Jonathon Bishop had two assists.

Dennis Woods scored his first goal of the year late in the third, and Rowden was credited with a rare assist.

The Redmen face a tough test against the Kenner Rams this Wednesday at the Dysart Arena. This weekend the Redmen will play in a 16 team tournament in Fenelon Falls. The Rams, C.W. Jeffrey's and Burlington's Assumption are the teams in the Redmen pool. Yake says these games will be a tough test for the Redmen.

PeeWee As off to great start

On November 25 they play Woodville in Minden at 6 p.m.

Hat tricks lead Stampers to win

Sid Stamp pounded The Times 8-3 to rack up its first win of the year in Minden Mens' Recreational League action last Monday.

The Stampers were led by a pair of hat tricks from Craig Crowe and Alec Little in their romp over The Times. Both players had four points on the night.

It was a close game for a while. The Times was behind by just one after the first period. Paul Walker and Lawrence Lougheed scored for The Times while Crowe, with two, and Craig Philip replied for Stamp.

In the second, Little scored the first three of his team's goals to put the Stampers far ahead. Gord Wood and Crowe also scored for the Stampers. Wood also had two assists in the game to give him three points while Gary Harrison added three assists. Other point getters for Stamp included Charlie Teljeur with two assists, Ben Manuge with two assists and Bill Hogg with one assist. There were also two points by the mystery man who goes only by the designation, #11.

Doug Schell, on an assist from Joel Cox and Walker, was the only player who bulged the twine behind Bret Foster for The Times.

Others picking up points for The Times, who dropped their second game of the year, during the first period were Andy Campbell with a pair of assists and Clarke Craig with one assist.

Home Hardware moved into a tie with KDD Contracting for second place by beating them 3-2 in the night's second match-up.

The Hardware guys got two goals in the second period to break a 1-1 tie. Boomer Stamp with his second of the game, assisted by Doug Allison, scored Hardware's first goal in the second period to get his team going. Peter Allore then scored the game winner with assists from Stamp and Trini Elias.

Stamp had also scored the first goal of the game with assists from Allore and Allison. Replying for KDD was Ivan Ingram from Corey Walker in the first period, and Scott Danilko from Ingram and Walker in the second period.

In the final match of the night, Hartwick beat Westside Jug City 6-3 to take full possession of first place.

Scott Nesbitt had a big game with four goals and two assists while Scott Hamilton had two goals and three assists.

The second period was again a crucial one as Hartwick scored four goals while Westside managed just two.

Hartwick had taken a 2-1 lead after one period of play. Hamilton on assists from Nesbitt and Kim Colliss was Hartwick's first goal scorer. Nesbitt then scored one of his own with an assist from Hamilton. Nesbitt scored three more times in the second to earn a big four goals for the game. He also assisted on the final goal of the game, that by Hamilton, and got a point on each of Hartwick's six goals.

For Westside, Eldon Bull scored the lone goal in the first with assists from Duane Warburton and Dave Rodgers. In the second, Greg Metcalfe scored from Bull and Steve Crowe, while Tom Haley scored from Mike Keaney.

Picking up assists for Hartwick were John Ballantyne and Kim Colliss with two each, Hamilton with three and Chad Connelly with two.

Players learn it's only a hockey game

by Evan Kernohan and Campbell.

Several other games saw the Monarchs on the short end of the stick. Included in those games were a 4-0 loss to Fenelon Falls, 7-0 to Haliburton, and two 6-0 to Bobcaygeon. Woodville also beat the Monarchs 10-1 with Campbell scoring the only goal, assisted by Kinsman.

Another loss to Woodville proved the scoreboard does not tell the whole story.

On November 12, the Monarchs were beaten 9-3, but the Monarchs had many more shots on goal and could have won the game with a few breaks.

The score was tied after the first. Kinsmen scored with assists from Carpenter and Campbell. Campbell then scored in the second when his hard shot bounced off the goalie's stick and into the net. Kinsman assisted on that goal and then scored his second of the game in the third period assisted by Campbell and Carpenter.

On November 14, Fenelon Falls beat the Monarchs again, this time 5-1. Kinsman scored after receiving a pass from Carpenter along the backboards.

At this point in the season, a positive approach would be for the players to learn from their defeats. The team should be applauded for what they try to do, and not always the end result. Mark Snell is holding down the fort and gaining experience and can not be blamed for any of the losses.

Perhaps Evan Kernohan's comment should be considered. "It's only a hockey game!"

Vandalism surge in Haliburton upsets Dysart councillors

by Andy Holloway

The following brief items were discussed at Dysart Council's regular monthly meeting last Monday.

Juvenile delinquents are causing a problem for Haliburton businesses trying to improve the appearance of the village's main street. Last weekend vandals ripped off all the Christmas lights the businesses had put up just days before. The lights were then smashed on the road. There were, however, witnesses to the event and the names of the vandals were given to Minden OPP.

Council called on the public to help them police the area. Councillor Robert Heinze said if people see an act of vandalism they should call police. Councillor Gerry Walker said if the public is made aware of the vandalism problem they will help.

"If we let them know about the problem then people will police it themselves," said Walker.

Earlier this fall the Haliburton bandshell was vandalized and serious damage was done. The damage has since been repaired.

Going it alone

Council decided to forge ahead with its own recycling initiatives instead of aligning itself with the county. The county is offering tire pick-up and CFC removal from cooling systems. The costs are $2 per tire and $30 per CFC inspection. Dysart, however, already has a contractor pick up its tires and charges dump users $2 for the service. The township will also set up its own CFC removal program and charge dump users directly. Council was informed that there are several local people who are licensed to remove CFCs and charge between $20 and $30. Cooling systems containing CFCs can not be accepted as trash at landfill sites after January 1, 1994.

Briefly

Dysart Council Notes

All cracked

A stretch of Highway 118 between West Guilford and Haliburton Village is all cracked up despite two attempts to pave it properly. The road underwent extensive construction this summer and most of the road is now vastly improved. But one section near Camp Towhee has cracked down the middle. Road crews tore it up and repaved it, but it cracked again. Part of the asphalt has sunk about an inch below the rest which could cause problems later on. Councillor Robert Heinze said he would hate to have the problem worsen and have someone's car fall into it.

Hunters change tactics for archery season

Now that the 1993 deer hunt is officially over in the immediate area, most hunters will sit back and savour the memories of the past few weeks.

There are a few of us, however, who haven't hung up the deer hunting gear just yet. We're just changing tactics -- and tackle -- and moving our attention a little farther south.

Anyone living within the readership area of The Times, is within an hour's drive (maximum) from an area that is still open for deer hunting with archery tackle.

Wildlife Management Unit (WMU) 75, is an example of an area that is open to archers until the end of the year. Check your 1993-94 Hunting Regulations Summary for the boundaries of this and other WMUs that offer an extended archery season.

If you are thinking of taking up hunting with a longbow, either recurve or compound, you can pretty well forget this season. There simply isn't time to become proficient with a longbow in a few weeks. Only those capable of consistently placing an arrow into an area the size of a small pie plate, at ranges from a few feet to about 40 yards should venture afield in pursuit of deer with a longbow. That type of marksmanship can't be achieved without months of practice.

The crossbow, however, is an alternative that requires less time to master. Once the sights are adjusted, it becomes a matter of judging distances.

Most crossbow shooters sight in at 20 paces. Shots at more than 30 yards should not be attempted. Beyond 30 yards, the chances of a clean kill decrease dramatically.

The trajectory of a crossbow bolt (arrow)

Outdoors

by Jerry Grozelle

is steeper than that of a longer arrow from a longbow, cutting the effective range by as much as 10-20 yards, depending on the draw weight, length of bolt and other factors.

Within its limitations, a crossbow is an effective and humane way to take deer. I've had the opportunity to test two crossbows this fall. Since I can't cock a crossbow in the usual way because of some paralysis in my right arm and hand, I've been using two different cocking devices that either reduce or eliminate the muscle power required.

EXCALIBUR VIXEN

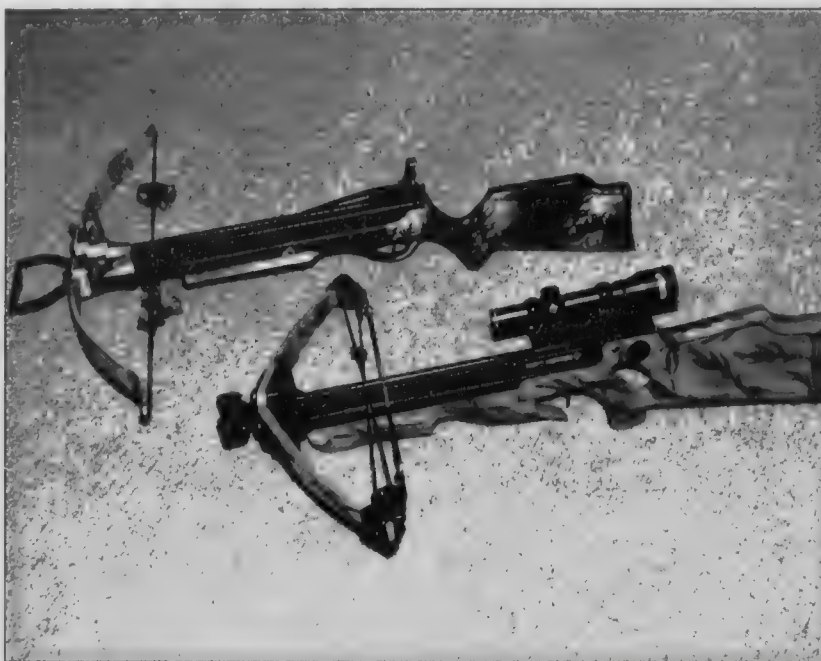

One of the crossbows is a Canadian-made Excalibur Vixen. The Vixen is a 150-pound pull conventional crossbow. By conventional, I mean it isn't a compound, with the pulleys and cables.

The Vixen was designed to utilize a rope and pulley type cocking device that reduces the strain required to draw the string back to engage the trigger mechanism.

The limbs of the Vixen and other Excalibur models are two-piece. This eliminates the downward pressure of the string on the deck of the bow that exist in some crossbows. The result is an increase in the life of the string.

Another characteristic that I like about the Excalibur is its trigger pull. It's smoother, with less travel than many rifles. The trigger mechanism is probably one of the reasons the company guarantees the accuracy of its bows. It is also very light, which could be a bonus if you have to hold the bow to your shoulder while you wait for a deer to walk out from behind an obstacle.

The Excalibur line has a reputation for accuracy and the bow I've been using lives up to that reputation. Five-shot groups in a three-inch circle at 20 yards are no problem for the Vixen. That's shooting off hand with the peep sight that comes standard.

Crossbows: The Excalibur Vixen and the Horton Hunter.

Crossbows extend the hunting season

Some people prefer two (or more) front sight pins, which can be adjusted for different ranges. I would rather use just one pin, sighted for 20 yards, and hold high for longer shots and low for shorter ones. Although the sight pins are colour coded, in fading light, or with the excitement of having a big buck in my sights, the second it takes to decide which pin to centre in the peep might mean the difference between a hit or a miss.

Being a non-compound, the Excalibur is several inches wider than a compound crossbow. That means you have to be especially conscious of anything that may be close enough to catch the limbs when the bow is fired. If you are using a ground blind, make sure any branches beside your line of fire are trimmed. Hitting a branch with the bow will not only make your shot go wild, it can also cause damage to the bow and possible injury to the shooter.

The Vixen will shoot bolts up to 20 inches long but I'm using 18-inch bolts, which keep the broadhead tucked closer to the channel between the limbs.

HORTON HUNTER

The other crossbow that I've been using for the past few weeks is a Horton Hunter.

This bow is a compound, also with 150 pound draw weight.

Although the Horton is more compact than the Excalibur, with the 1X20 scope attached, it is nearly two pounds heavier than the Vixen.

When it comes to catering to hunters who are unable to load a crossbow with brute strength, the Horton people have the ultimate accessory. The Activator is a battery operated cocking device designed to be used exclusively with the Horton line of crossbows.

This amazing device cocks the bow with the push of a button. Simply anchor the Activator by inserting its two pins into two eyes at the front of the bow in place of the stirrup. Press the button and hold it down until the string engages the trigger mechanism and pushes the automatic safety to the on position. Retract the push rod by holding down the other button, lift the Activator out of the anchor mounts, insert a bolt and you're ready for action.

Horton also offers a rope and pulley type of cocking device for its line of crossbows.

When it comes to cocking devices, anyone can benefit from their use. Since almost everybody is stronger in one arm than the other, there is a tendency to pull a string back a bit off centre. A fraction of an inch won't affect accuracy if you pull it off centre the same amount each time. With a mechanical cocking device, the bow is cocked virtually the same every time, assuring consistency and eliminating the "human error."

A rope and pulley type device retails for less than $25 in most archery stores while the Activator will set you back almost as much as the crossbow.

The Horton is also capable of excellent accuracy. Sighted to hit about three inches high at 25 yards with field points, the Hunter shoots its 20-inch bolts right on the money at 20 yards with the Wasp broadheads that I use with both bows.

One thing that the Horton Hunter is less likely to do than the Vixen is slide off your lap. The finish on the composite stock is not glass-smooth like the Excalibur so it has a tendency to stay put even if the "platform" is a little tilted.

For those accustomed to hunting with a scoped rifle, the addition of a scope to a crossbow is a logical step. Magnification is not as important as the light gathering capabilities. Those who use a scope will find an increase of a few precious minutes of hunting time at dawn and dusk, the time you're most likely to encounter an old buck on the prowl. Those extra two or three minutes in the morning and evening when you can see the crosshairs on a target but can not make out open sights can mean the difference between getting a clear shot or having to pass up an iffy one.

The Horton scope I've been using is a 1X20, which means it has no magnification. At bow hunting ranges no magnification is necessary. In some cases, a two or four power scope can be a detriment when it comes to estimating the distance to the target. Estimating distances to the target is critical considering the trajectory of a crossbow bolt.

With its duplex reticle, the Horton scope is similar to looking through the scopes on most rifles and it is easy to sight on a target in fading light.

Regardless of the type of equipment you use, hunting deer (and other game) with archery tackle can extend your enjoyment of the outdoor experience until well after the firearm hunters have packed it in for the season.

Ron Nubbs wins $100 in Big Buck Competition

The Ontario Deer Hunt in Haliburton has proved successful to many hunters again this year.

Proof of that comes from the local "Tommy's Big Buck Competition" hosted by the Minden Kinsmen Club and Tommy Williamson. The competition just completed its 13th year of promoting hunting in the Highlands.

The hunter who kills the heaviest, field dressed buck wins $100. This year the prize was won by Ron Nubbs of Paul's Lake Hunt Club whose buck weighed 220.5 pounds. Second place was the 218 pound buck bagged by Larry Giles of the same club.

Other winners were: Elwood Morrison - 216.7 pounds, Steve Anthony - 208, Ron March - 207, Tom Bagshaw Jr. - 200, Tom Bagshaw - 179.3, Joan Cooper - 172, Keith Thomas - 170.5, Tommy Murray - 166, Dwaine Cowan - 149.6.

Coneybeare Butcher Shop in Minden and Four Season Butcher Shop in Carnarvon weighed and recorded the entries.

The winners of the local Marion Drysdale OSSTF Writing Contest pose with principal Gary Brohman and English teacher Michele Shapiera who organized the contest. See story below for winners' names.

Creative effort by HHSS students

by Andy Holloway

Twelve students at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School were rewarded for their creative writing efforts last Thursday.

The students were the local winners of the Marion Drysdale OSSTF Writing Contest, a province-wide contest open to all students. This is the first time the contest was held at the school level. Normally, the school picks entries and enters them at the provincial level.

First place winners receive $25 and their work will be entered in the provincial finals representing HHSS. Provincial winners will be announced next May. Second place winners receive $15. All winners receive a certificate of merit award.

This year's topic was, My school, a good place to be: More than just classroom. Judging by the content of the winning entries, HHSS is a great place to go to school, whether you are a 20-year-old single mother or a young, impressionable student. The winning entry in the Advanced Category - Creative section was an impressive piece of work utilizing photos, colour and words to show there are many sides to school, not just classes.

The contest was organized by English teacher Michele Shapiera and was supported by the local OSSTF president Louise Cooper and principal Gary Brohman.

Local winners were:

Amy Postelthwaite, Lindsay Francis and Kelly Morrison share an award of merit.

The following are two of the winning entries.

Karen Cooper, General Category - Essay/poem

Last June I came in to HHSS to see whether or not I could come back after years of being out of school.

When I walked in, I realized that being 20 years of age and single mom of a 4-year-old boy, I was never going to get anywhere in life without an education. My guidance counsellor and I had a good talk, and we decided which

Dysart to be digitally mapped

The township will inform Fowler Contracting which did the paving of the problem

Mapped in

Dysart will soon be digitally mapped with all the information stored in the township's computers. The mapping will help staff call up information about zoning areas, severances and lot sizes. The cost to the township will be about $18,000, with $3,000 already spent to map out Havelock township. Not all of council was pleased about the new mapping. Deputy-reeve Curry Bishop, himself a surveyor, said the maps would be inaccurate and may be useless. But clerk Donna McCallum said it would suit the township's needs and would cut down on the amount of time searching for information. Bishop abstained from voting saying he still had mixed feelings. The rest of council, however, went for the idea.

classes I would enjoy and learn from.

Now that I've been here for a month I have enjoyed myself, got better marks than ever, and have had a lot of help from the teachers and the people in the office.

Everyone is friendly when I walk in. Even if I am in a bad mood every teacher I walk by has a smile on his/her face and says "good morning." It's great!

Now that I realize what I was missing by not having an education, I have a totally different outlook on school.

My classes are interesting because they are about things that I have already experienced in life. I can get right into the conversations and nobody puts me down. People care about what I have to say.

If I had to do it over again, I would still go to HHSS. My son will hopefully study here too. It's a great place to be.

Adam Dunn, Advanced Category
Essay/poem

As I walk in and see the halls,
I know yet another day has begun.

A day of disappointment,
and triumph.
Unhappiness, and fun.

For many of the people here, school is most of their life.

It may mean salvation,
or it may mean boredom.
School is more than just classes because it is also a way of life.

Wondering what parents will say about a falling mark
Or walking around with your friends at lunch and having a good time.

School may mean trying hard to get the best mark or gathering with friends at the bus stop.

School is more than a classroom because the people in it have feelings.
And you can see them everywhere you look.

Techni-cal Challenge celebrates its 10th year

When Val and Steve Lougheed became interested in racing dogs 15 years ago, it was mostly for fun. When they started up the Minden Techni-cal Challenge 10 years ago, it was so they could spend at least one weekend each winter in their home town. Now they find themselves heading up the world's largest limited-class sled dog race and receiving honours for their success.

Their determination to make the Minden Techni-cal Challenge a world-class event has been realized. The race offers the largest purse in North America for an event of its kind — $25,100 provided by race sponsor, Martin Pet Foods — and it attracts the world's best mushers. In 1988, in recognition of the benefits the derby brings to the whole community, the Lougheeds were named "Citizens of the Year" by the Minden Rotary Club. Two years later, Val Lougheed was named Highlander of the Year by the Haliburton County Chamber of Commerce.

Val and Steve discovered dog racing during the year they lived in the Yukon, following their marriage in 1974. But it wasn't until they returned to southern Ontario that they bought their first sled dog, a Siberian husky. Their earliest attempts at training weren't exactly by the book.

"We borrowed two other dogs," Val recalls, "and hitched all three of them up to a bicycle. Steve got onto the bike and the dogs took off across a field — which was fine until the bike hit a rock. The dogs and the bike stopped, but Steve didn't!"

For their first race, the couple shared the team, with Steve racing the first day and Val the second. They decided to buy the two dogs they had borrowed and soon found out they both liked racing so much that they didn't want to share. So they had to buy three more dogs. Then Steve wanted to try the six-dog races and so did Val. And then they wanted to try eight. One thing led to another and they now own 45 dogs, which they breed as well as run.

In the summer of 1984, Val and Steve decided their town would be a perfect place to hold a major dog race. "We live in Haliburton County, which is a beautiful part of Ontario," Steve points out. "It's central for people who live anywhere in Ontario, as well as Quebec, New England, New York, Michigan, and so on. It's a well-established tourist area in the summer and most of the facilities, like resorts and motels and restaurants, are open year-round. People are used to coming up here from Toronto, which is about two hours away; so it's not too hard to draw spectators and media attention. On top of that, this community traditionally gives a lot of support to home-grown projects and we felt we would be able to draw on that."

Home day care under attack

Recently, the Employment Standards Branch (ESA) of the Ministry of Labour heard a grievance put forth by the licensed Private Home Day Care (PHDC) providers of the MacCauley Centre in Toronto. These providers, in an effort to achieve financial recognition for their profession, argue for employee status, in contrast to the traditional contractor status. The ESA has ruled in their favour.

While specific only to the Providers at the MacCauley Centre and not province-wide at this point, the decision has far reaching implications for families, home child care agencies and providers across Ontario.

Try to imagine a budget that reflects an average provider's daily rate of $20 per child (maximum five children) and then have this dollar figure change (with pay equity) to approximately $15 to $18 per hour, subject to deductions, etc., and you'll understand the dilemma that is before agencies supporting licensed private home child care services.

Perhaps the greatest quandary posed by this scenario is our support of the need for greater recognition for all those providing care, particularly those providing home child care, yet recognizing that such a drastic shift in the costs could cause the system to collapse.

The Ministry of Community and Social Services is reacting to the financial dilemma created by this ruling by rewriting the legislation specific to licensed private home child care.

The ministry also commissioned the Home Child Care Association of Ontario to draft a discussion paper detailing alternative models of home child care. Although considerable effort was put into this draft, the models fall far short of ideal. Where a proposed model included adequate provision for the status of providers, it offered minimal assurances for families and children (or vice versa). One model proposed that all persons providing child care in their homes become licensed -- a strategy which would only serve to drive the system underground and could consequently be of real detriment to our children.

Your voice/response is needed in order to effect a positive change. Please address your concerns to Janice May, Policy Analyst, Queen's Part, 2 Bloor St. W., Toronto.

Please feel free to call me at 457-2989 if you require additional information to help make your decision. If we don't speak up, we could be sorely affected by this. We can make a difference -- we realized this with the social contract negotiations. Let's not stop the momentum.

VON raffle raises $1,400

The Victorian Order of Nurses raised more than $1,400 for its foot care program by raffling off a limited edition print.

The money will be used to support the 26 clinics in the counties of Peterborough, Victoria and Haliburton.

There are six clinics in Haliburton, nine in Peterborough and 10 in Victoria County. These are fully funded by user fees paid by clients and a fundraising total of $36,700 is needed to maintain the operation of the clinics.

The Edwin Mathews print was donated by The Gallery on the Lake in Buckhorn. The draw was held on Oct. 21 and Shirley Meredith of Peterborough was the winner.

Enquiries about the foot care program can be made by calling the VON at 1-800-267-2905.

Sled dog derby keeps growing

So they approached two friends active in the business community and the first race was held in January 1985. The group succeeded so quickly that, by the second year, the Minden Techni-cal Challenge was the largest sled-dog race in Ontario and the only one in the province sanctioned by the International Sled Dog Racing Association.

The success of the Minden Techni-cal Challenge stems not only from high goals and thorough organization. It is also a direct reflection of the Lougheeds' own philosophies. One aspect of sled-dog racing that has appealed to them from the beginning is the family orientation of the sport.

Because their busy lives pull them in various directions, the dogs provide an important focal point for their life as a family. Steve's job as a surveyor takes him all over the county and sometimes into other areas of the province. Val runs her own business with offices across southern Ontario. Their sons, Jesse and Caleb are 12 and 10 years old, with all the extracurricular activity that implies. "It's the one thing we all do together," says Val.

"Without the dogs, sometimes I think we'd never see each other."

The two boys, for instance, play a valuable part in developing the Lougheeds' kennel. For years they have helped feed and water the dogs and socialize the puppies. Last year, both boys also starting testing their skills as racers.

Because of the importance of the family aspect of sled dog racing, the Lougheeds made sure a kid-and-mutt race was included at Minden. Naturally, their boys have participated every year, along with a dozen or more other youngsters.

The Lougheeds also believe the race, and the community in which it takes place, are complementary — that what benefits one benefits the other. That belief has been vindicated. On the one hand, thousands of spectators crowd Main Street each year to watch the teams start and finish and, on the other, the community has risen to the challenge of putting on a major and complex event.

Community enthusiasm is evident in the hundreds of volunteers who give their time during the two-day event, standing out in the cold to operate radio communications equipment, providing trail assistance to mushers, handling musher registration, providing traffic co-ordination and crowd control, and getting the teams up to the line on time and in the right order.

Perhaps most important of all among the attitudes the Lougheeds bring to the Minden race, and to sled-dog racing in general, is their insistence that the whole thing be fun — for themselves, for the organizing committee, for the volunteers, and for all those who come to participate. "The minute it stops being fun," says Val, "we quit."

To celebrate the 10th anniversary edition of the Minden Techni-cal Challenge, we are pleased to offer the first in a series of five articles that offer our readers insight into the sport of sled-dog racing. This year's running of the Minden Techni-cal Challenge will be held on January 22 and 23, 1994.

The November meeting of the Club 35 Ladies Auxiliary was held November 11 when events were finalized for the upcoming months. The auxiliary is young, but active and new members are always welcome.

A quilting club has been organized and quilting lessons will be a highlight since we have several professional quilters in our auxiliary. We welcome all interested ladies and men. Please call May Bradbury, 286-3294 for more information.

Along with Club 35 general membership the auxiliary will host a New Year's eve community party.

Armistice Day remembered

Saturday was a quiet day here at Hyland Crest. My family from Peterborough came in the afternoon and took me for a drive. We called on Hilda LaRue and we had supper at the donut shop in Haliburton. At 2 p.m. John Menzies entertained the residents with piano music for which we thank him very much.

November 7, Haliburton County held an armistice service with a parade and service at the Cenotaph. Bill Prentice drove our bus down to the service. We thank Bill greatly.

In the evening, Chapel service was taken by Reverend John Burgess and Ruth Worthington played the organ. Thank you Ruth and John.

Due to the hunting season very little work has been done during the week. Kathy Woods had fitness in the morning and discussed current events in the afternoon.

Tuesday, Pastor Fast held the Chapel service and we thank him sincerely. In the afternoon Dottie Muirhead was in charge of crafts. Corinne Arsenault helped a couple of tables to play cards in the evening.

Bonnie Fullan conducted fitness and hosted a discussion on Armistice Day in the afternoon.

Thursday was Armistice Day and most of us watched the service on Parliament Hill. It was Tea Party time in the afternoon and it was provided by the Horticultural Society. Mary Cox, Edna Taylor, Joan Moore (who served) with Beryl Henderson, Zetta Little, Shirley Horsley and Bess Cox sending food. It was a delicious tea and we thank these ladies heartily.

For Happy Hour Kathy Woods played old favourites (on records) of days gone by that the residents and their friends enjoyed. Thank you Kathy, Don Holden, Mary Guillemain, Bonnie Fullan and Dottie Muirhead immensely for your help.

Hyland Crest thanks South Lake Trailer Park for a very much appreciated donation of fruit pies. Thanks also go to Rusty's Auto Service for the generous donation of Christmas cakes.

Our sincere sympathy goes out to the families and friends in the passing of Garnet Ash, November 12, and Robert Mitchell on November 13.

On November 14, Vera Barnhart celebrated her birthday with a surprise party given by her family in the auditorium. Happy birthday and many more to come.

SNOW REMOVAL

The Highway Traffic Act RSO 1980, C198 - S147 (10), Revised 1982 states "no person shall park or stand a vehicle on a highway in such a manner as to interfere with the movement of traffic or the clearing of snow from the highway". A constable or County By-Law officer may have the vehicle removed from the roadway and stored at the owner's expense.

Section 157 states "No person shall deposit snow or ice on a roadway without permission in writing so to do from the Ministry or the road authority responsible for maintenance of the road". The penalty on conviction is a fine of not more than $50.00.

The co-operation of all motorists in these matters would be appreciated for efficient winter maintenance of County Roads and the safety of others.

NATIONAL DAY OF COMMEMORATION DECEMBER 6

How Many More Of Us?

On December 6, 1989, one man murdered 14 women in Montreal. This was not an isolated act. Men who abuse and murder women are brought up to have power and control in a culture that devalues women.

Violence is a chosen response. Men must take responsibility for their actions. Every community and every institution must work to build a culture of safety, equality and justice for women.

We must never forget the women murdered on December 6, 1989 and all women who suffer from male violence. We must transform our outrage and our tears into action, now.

PLEASE JOIN US FOR AN OUTDOOR PUBLIC VIGIL
To Remember The Fourth Anniversary Of The Montreal Massacre
And To Honour Other Women Who Have Experienced Violence.

• MONDAY, DECEMBER 6, 1993 at 12:15 p.m. - 12:45 p.m. • in front of Cordell Interiors, Main Street, Haliburton

All Are Welcome

If you wish bring a song, a poem, etc. for sharing.

Humans can learn much from the lowly fruitfly

Even the tiny, innocuous fruitfly has a certain capacity for memory and learning. In human beings those abilities are vastly superior, yet we seem unable to acknowledge the reality of the future we are headed for or choose the safest route to it. Unfortunately, the time frame in which human beings, including politicians, plan is far too short to meet the ecological threats to our planet. The challenge facing our new federal government is to look ahead and take the actions now that are needed to secure a stable and rich future for our children.

"Are you the fruit who studies fruitflies? a logger jeered at me as I passed through the gauntlet of forest industry supporters on Vancouver Island last summer.

They were protesting the concert given by the Midnight Oil to support Friends of Clayoquot. My assailant was trying to ridicule me for having spent 25 years of studying an inconspicuous insect. But I'm proud to have studied an organism that has informed us so much about ourselves.

The flying, eating and mating behaviour of fruitflies is highly stereotyped, that is, controlled largely by genes. For example, when a fly's feet touch something sweet, its proboscis automatically extends because taste receptors in the feet are wired directly to the muscles controlling its mouth. Such "hardwired" responses can't be controlled once triggered by the proper environmental cues. Yet remarkably, scientists have recently shown that even such a tiny creature has a brain with the capacity to remember and learn.

So the biological origins of memory and its effect on behavior are rooted far back in our evolutionary history. They allow flexibility in responding to novel circumstances. And no species has greater plasticity in reacting than us. Our huge and complex brain gave us not only a greater memory but a capacity for abstraction. We invented a concept we call the future, which only exists as an idea in our minds.

Yet on the basis of that notion, we are able to influence events by deliberately choosing from a number of options in the present. Our distant ancestors, by avoiding a dangerous area or choosing to go where they remembered that edible plants grew, successfully selected a path to survival. It is ironic that today, with a vastly expanded information base to help us make decisions, we seem unable to acknowledge the reality of the future we are headed for or choose the safest route to it.

In the radio series It's a Matter of Survival, experts in many areas described the world as it might be in 50 years if we continue along the same destructive path of deforestation, greenhouse gas production, ozone depletion and so on. The picture that emerged was of a hellish place in which civilization as we know it could no longer be supported. What was reassuring was that it was only a projection of one possibility and needn't happen if we take the proper steps now.

The recent federal election showed once again why our form of government cannot follow the same survival strategy our species has always used. Vision to a politician cannot extend beyond three or four years because political reality demands an overriding

Reflections

by David Suzuki

preoccupation with re-election. So megaprojects are much more attractive than slowly building up sustainable communities and projects all across the country because they provide immediate, large and splashy results in time for an election.

Reduction of Canada's carbon dioxide emissions by 20 per cent from 1988 levels in 15 years would result in a staggering net saving of about $150 billion. Yet in spite of his fiscal responsibility and claim of caring about the environment, then Prime Minister Brian Mulroney failed to implement such a program. The reason is that it would require the expenditure of about $74 billion up front and the saving would only be realized after 15 years, too many elections down the road.

In the provinces, decisions are being made for short-term political and economic returns despite potential negative long-term ecological consequences: clear-cut logging in the Clayoquot watershed, uranium mining in Saskatchewan, the fixed link between Prince Edward Island and the mainland, Quebec hydroelectric projects and development of the Hibernia oil field off Newfoundland.

We have to look at what we are doing from a different perspective. Suppose we use our capacity for memory and look back. Over the half century I can remember, the world has changed beyond recognition. I remember huge runs of silver bass in the Niagara River, hatches of mayflies in Lake Erie that coated the beaches a metre deep, abundant crayfish and clams in the Thames River in London.

Today, little more than memories remain. When I was a child, the Amazon rainforest was intact, there were vast herds of animals on the Serengeti plains of East Africa, and cheetahs, rhinos, whales and northern cod were still abundant.

Fifty years ago, if we had looked ahead and forecast what the world has become today, would we have accepted it? Now look ahead to an uncertain future that will be far less stable and rich.

Why do we seem so unwilling to take action to help our children avoid such a scenario? This is the challenge that faces our new government, that even a little fruitfly suggests we take seriously.

Contrasts

Some scorching day in summer
We think of Twelve Mile Lake
So we take a drive up to it
And our duties here forsake.
But when we reach the beach there
The waves do rush and roar
And sometimes we are happy
Just to sit upon the shore.
But we were up that way again
One lovely Autumn day,
The lake was like a sheet of glass
Not a ripple on the bay.
I think our lives are much like this,
Some calm, some stormy days
And we must trust our Lord above
Who is wise in all His ways.

Women's Institute update

The November 17 meeting of Minden Women's Institute was held at the Common Room of the Library/Cultural Centre with 14 members and one guest present, Jean Lacey presiding. After the usual opening, Irene Moore gave the card report and said that 28 cards had been sent since the last meeting. Collections were taken for Pennies for Friendship and the card fund. A list of projects and donations by this branch was read and several items added. This will go into our Tweedsmuir history books.

Eleanor Crane, Victoria East District President gave us some highlights from the area convention and mentioned that the convention was excellent. Our president thanked her. Convenor J. Sears gave a report on ideas about citizenship and legislation and read some clippings of current interest.

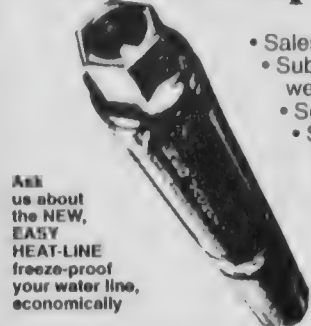

The decision was made to exchange gifts of no more than $3 and bring a guest to the Christmas meeting which will be a pot luck lunch held at the United Church hall on December 15 at 12 noon.

After adjournment, an auction of articles such as plants, crafts and baking was held with our auctioneer Doris Grant. Everyone enjoyed tea and snacks served by the committee.

IN MEMORIAM

DAVIES: In memory of our dear Mother, Norma C. Davies, lost to us November 23, 1986. To some you may be forgotten, To others, a part of the past, But to us who loved and lost you, Your memory will always last. Never forgotten and always loved by her children, Steve and family, Tim and Tara.

DAVIES: In sweet memory of a dearly loved friend, Norma, who left us November 23, 1986. No space of time, no lapse of years Can dim the treasured past A loving memory keeps it dear Affection holds it fast. Sadly missed by her friends.

I will never forget the day CECIL BURK passed away, November 27, 1987 One of the hardest lessons to learn Is how to let go of our loved ones. Cecil was one of those lessons Letting go becomes something special As my life goes on. His loving wife, Jean.

HUGHES, Shirley - In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother who passed away November 27, 1990. A million times I've needed you A million times I've cried, If love could have saved you Mom You never would have died. Things we feel most deeply Are the hardest things to say Mom you know I loved you In a very special way. If I could have one lifetime wish One dream that could come true, I'd pray to God with all my heart For yesterday and you. Sadly missed and always loved, Joanne, Kirk, Kevin and Janine Harrison.

ROBINSON, Phil - In loving memory of my dear husband Phillip Arthur who departed this life for a better one on November 18, 1986. His wife, Florence

PERSONAL

My apologies to the residents of Kinmount. My abrupt departure as the nurse/receptionist at the Kinmount Medical Centre was unforeseen. I did not resign. I thoroughly enjoyed my job and will miss it and all of you. I sincerely hope that you will continue to support Dr. Wu who is, as many of you already know, a wonderful, kind and caring doctor. Should circumstances ever change I would gladly return to work in Kinmount and be among you again. Judy, Connie and Liz--I'll stop by for coffee and a visit every now and then. Once again, my apologies. I feel as if I let you down.
Sharon McLaughlin, RNA Kinmount
